

GRAND ARMY AFFAIRS.

New York Veterans Looking After Their Rights.

POSTS AND POLITICIANS.

A Haversack Heavily Laden with Interesting Matter.

Special Correspondence National Tribune.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—In consequence of a call emanating from John A. Dix Post, No. 135, G. A. R., a very large convention of delegates from other Grand Army Posts assembled Friday evening at the Hotel Schilling, 364 Sixth avenue, to take action concerning the recent discharges of veteran soldiers from Government employment by order of Republican officeholders. The call requested such Posts as could send delegates to do so, taking care that such delegates should be neither officeholders nor those who had been discharged from public offices, and that such Posts as could not be represented would communicate by letter. Before the hour for assembling fifty-five Posts had reported by delegates, and letters were received from eighty-one Posts at too great a distance to attend. Some of the letters were very spirited.

George H. Thomas Post, No. 4, of Rochester, N. Y., wrote:

"Many of the representatives of the Republican party openly and flagrantly violate the sections of the Revised Statutes mentioned. [Sections 1751 and 1753.] Those holding subordinate positions are encouraged in this course by their superiors. The present Secretary of the Treasury, and now nominee of the Republican party for Governor of this State, wholly ignored the almost unanimous request of the soldiers of this district for the appointment of one of their number, a gallant and worthy soldier, who is still suffering from the effects of long confinement in rebel prisons, as their candidate for Collector of Internal Revenue. He was eminently qualified for the position and was endorsed by nearly all the prominent business firms of this city and leading Republicans in the district, together with the officials, including the four members of Congress from this district, and also had the positive promise of President Garfield for the position. Notwithstanding all this, the present Secretary of the Treasury, refusing to acknowledge any claim of the soldier, gave the place to a stay-at-home politician. We believe the sympathies of the people are with us, and would willingly accord positions of profit and trust to deserving soldiers; but their claims are too often frustrated by designing and corrupt politicians; and we believe that it is the duty of soldiers to unite as to be enabled to demand their rights."

Charles P. Sprout Post, No. 76, of Lockport, N. Y., forwarded a resolution:

"That Charles P. Sprout Post regards with severe disapproval the reported action of certain officials in New York city in discriminating against members of the G. A. R. in the matter of removals from office. No class of citizens have so good a right to preferential treatment in the holding of positions of profit as the members of this organization, and while the action complained of does not directly concern us, we deem the occasion a proper one for the assertion of the above principle, which we are prepared to maintain at all times with our votes as well as our voices."

All expressed the strongest sympathy with the objects of the meeting and many of them forwarded resolutions of the most vigorous construction in accord with those of John A. Dix Post. Mr. Morgan Morgan, Jr., called the meeting to order, and after George W. Roberts, secretary, read the call, briefly addressed the meeting, urging that those who fought for and saved the country have justly earned the right to be the first to receive public appointments, all things of course, being equal, and the applicant being fit and competent. He deprecated the idea that this movement had in it anything of a political purpose. Comrade Harrington also enforced the claim that this is a movement wholly independent of partisan purposes. Comrade Kay said that this is an assemblage of men who are not under any obligations to the Government.

Steele Post, 269, Carthage.—Adjutant C. D. Austin.

Post 290, Corinth.—Comrades Brooks, Coon, and Davis.

A number of vigorous speeches were made by representatives of various Posts, all in the same vein of hearty endorsement of the spirit shown by Comrade Clark, of Newburgh, who said that "the men who saved the country have the best right to administer its offices," and as for himself he "always had voted and always would vote for a soldier against a civilian, irrespective of party." Comrade Barrett, of Post 89, said that the places intended by the United States laws to be held by capable soldiers are at the disposal of subordinates, politicians who have no sympathy with or interest in soldiers, who have favorites, pets, and henchmen of their own to provide for, and think nothing of leaving the soldier out in the cold. He believed that all this could be remedied, if the Grand Army would properly and judiciously exercise the great power it has in its numerical strength and the sympathy its members undoubtedly have among good citizens.

A committee on permanent organization of this convention of delegates reported, nominating as officers for one year: President, Andrew M. Underhill, Post 135; Vice-Presidents, John H. Walker, Post 10; A. Harrington, Post 130; Secretaries, G. W. Roberts, Post 135; F. Leary, Post 160; Treasurer, E. W. Brunninghausen, Post 32. The officers were elected, and President Underhill took the chair. Comrades Story, of Post 46; Reardon, Post 67; Ferguson, Post 20; Walker, Post 92; Clark, Post 52, and McDermott, Post 69, were elected additional vice-presidents.

THE RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Resolved, That the citizens here assembled are mindful that the comrades of the G. A. R. represent every existing political organization, and it is the purpose of this movement to help organize the patriotic sentiment of the country in the interest of the veteran soldiers and sailors, without reference to their party affiliations; we do, therefore,

Resolved, First—That we have learned with deep regret that veteran soldiers and sailors who held positions under the Government have been dismissed without cause, and in new appointments men worthy and capable have been put aside who twenty years ago pledged their lives that this Republic should suffer no harm.

Second—That in our judgment the public sentiment which demanded the patriotic Congress which enacted, and the President who approved Sections 1751 and 1753 of the Revised Statutes of the United States aimed to prevent such discrimination against those veterans, and in their behalf the Grand Army of the Republic should see that the exigencies of partisan politics do not rob them of the fruits of their legislation.

Third—That in our judgment no veteran soldier or sailor should be denied a place in the civil service of this Government so long as there are places he is fitted to fill, and no political party has the right to prescribe those men.

Fourth—That we point with pride to the veteran soldiers of that army which arose at the call of the martyred Lincoln to preserve a free Government in this land, whose discharges are certificates of service for this country, where service was sacrifice, who are not beggars for places, who want no sinecures, and who have earned the right to serve in peace the Government for which they volunteered to fight in war.

Fifth—That equal capacity being assumed, such men should have preference in appointments under the Government where statute and patriotic sentiment alike prohibit discrimination against them in the various departments of the public service, and we do, therefore, pledge ourselves by all legitimate methods to maintain the rights and assert the privileges of the veteran soldiers and sailors of this land whenever, wherever and by whomsoever those rights and privileges shall be menaced.

After these resolutions were adopted one of the comrades suggested that Major Willard Inland, of Post 8, a prominent Grand Army man, but also an officeholder, being harbor-master at this port, should be heard. He claimed that, though according to their circular he had no right to be there, yet he always went wherever some good might be done to the soldier, and, though active in politics, he was always ready to stand by his comrades.

The executive committee was then instructed to communicate with Posts throughout the United States, so as to make it a national organization.

The assessment of $1 per Post was then suggested, but referred to a finance committee for report. The meeting adjourned after voting to print 10,000 copies of the resolutions. After the meeting numerous comrades lingered for some time in the hall, wishing success to the movement.

Today but too little time has elapsed to ascertain the effect of this important movement upon the individual Posts, as not many of them have held meetings since Friday. I will report to your readers the action taken in regard to the same by the leading Posts.

AN IMPARTIAL ADMINISTRATION.

There is one thing, however, which many comrades admit—that the present administration is exceedingly free from any discrimination against veterans, and no removals have been made except for cause. It is positively known that the present Secretary of the Treasury has made it a point always to give the preference to veterans, where everything else is alike, not only in the Department proper, but in its various branches. Whether there is truth in the charges brought against the Post Office in New York remains yet to be seen, though it is said that even there a veteran was discharged for cause. It is rumored, however, that a member of John A. Dix Post asked for leave of absence on an evening that his Post was to consider the subject of this meeting, and his superiors purposely refused to grant him leave to attend. Whether this is so or not remains for the Post Office authorities to explain.

Upon motion of Comrade Morgans, Post 135, the executive committee were instructed to send notification of the action of this meeting to the heads of the various State Departments of the G. A. R. throughout the Union, and request their co-operation.

A GRAND ARMY DAY FOR NEW YORK.

There is talk of having a Grand Army Day in New York, but thus far it has not yet met with general favor. The matter came up at the meeting of the memorial committee last week, when it was resolved to request Commanders of Posts to test the sense of their comrades in regard to this matter. When that action becomes known to the memorial committee, it will then be decided either to have a Grand Army Day or an evening entertainment some time during this fall.

A committee has been appointed by the memorial committee to select permanent headquarters for the purposes of extending relief to veterans during the winter. The moment the committee's report has been approved and the new quarters selected, a committee on relief will be appointed, one or two of whom will be in attendance every evening.

The latest Posts organized in this State are No. 297, at Randolph, Cattaraugus co.; No. 298, at Kendall, Orleans co., organized with sixty-five charter members; No. 299, at Batavia, Genesee co. Now for No. 300! Who will secure the prize?

PEN AND SWORD.

PENNSYLVANIA.

The Preparations for the Grand Army Day in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Grand Army Day here comes on the 27th inst., the day set apart by the Bi-Centennial management for the Grand Army and Military parade, which in all probability and from present indications will be the greatest day of all during the Bi-Centennial Celebration. It is estimated that from 8,000 to 10,000 uniformed G. A. R. men will be in line. The line will form on South Broad street at 10 o'clock a. m., and will be reviewed by the President and Cabinet, General Sherman and Staff, and other military officers. A reception committee will be appointed by the Department Commander to take charge of visiting Posts upon their arrival, and assign them to their proper quarters here.

In the evening there will be a reception of the comrades and their ladies in the Academy of Fine Arts, the immense picture galleries of which have been secured exclusively for the Grand Army for that evening. The same evening there will also be a Camp-fire in the large Industrial Hall, Broad and Vine streets, (but two squares above the Academy of Fine Arts,) which it is intended shall surpass any we have heretofore held.

The tickets to the reception and the Camp-fire will be complimentary, but will only admit comrades in uniform, or with a badge. This restriction is necessary to prevent the building being crowded by those not connected with the Order.

The Department Commander says, in General Orders No. 14, that Commanders of Posts coming as organizations will report at which depot, and at what time they will arrive, and their probable strength. They will be met at the depot and escorted to Industrial Hall and furnished with breakfast, and after the parade will return to the same place for supper. To prevent dissatisfaction and confusion, Commanders must be careful to comply with this order properly and in time.

Arrangements have already been made to furnish over 3,000 meals at the above place alone. The Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic and his entire Staff will be present and take part in the ceremonies; also our Department Commander and his staff. General W. E. W. Ross, of Baltimore, Maryland, who it will be remembered, did so much to make the National Encampment held at Baltimore last June such a grand success, has written to our Department Commander that he is coming with a delegation of his Post (1). Post 3 of Baltimore is also coming, and will be the guests of Post 21 of this city.

Invitations have been sent to New York Posts and others of the neighboring States, and Posts in Camden and Trenton, New Jersey, and other localities have signified their intention to be present. Post 2 will entertain the Tibbitts Corps and the Governor's Post Guard, of Connecticut. Post 6 will have charge of Post 145 of Quakertown, Pennsylvania; Post 7 that of Post 37, of Camden, New Jersey, and 37, of York, Pennsylvania. Post 8 will have charge of their guests Post 32, of Atlantic City, New Jersey; Post 9, of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania; and a delegation from Dover, Delaware. Post 24 will take charge of Post 25, of Chester, Pennsylvania; and Post 27 will have as their guests Post 194, from the same place; Post 35 will have charge of Post 64, of Williamsport, Pennsylvania; Post 89, of Post 16, of Baltimore; Post 114, that of Post 2, of Wilmington, Delaware. All comrades in uniform will be received and entertained during the day without cost to themselves, and no comrade who is not in uniform will be permitted to parade. The Department Officers are doing all in their power to make the visiting comrades comfortable and to make the parade a feature of the Bi-Centennial. In future articles we hope to be able to furnish your readers with the most interesting items connected with this great Grand Army Day.

PRESIDENT AND VETS.

A Visit to the Tomb of Daniel Webster, at Marshfield, Mass.

President Arthur paid a visit to the tomb of Daniel Webster, at Marshfield, Mass., on Thursday last, during his stay in Boston. The Grand Army played a conspicuous part in the interesting proceedings.

When the artillery train arrived the company formed at the station and waited for the President. Plymouth county division Grand Army of the Republic was formed on the left side of the road, leading toward the field. On the right of the column were Junior Vice Commander Billings, Assistant Adjutant-General Meach, Comrade Parsons, of the Council, and several aides-de-camp. The division was commanded by Comrade B. S. Attwood, of Post 73; C. D. Nash, adjutant; E. A. Chase, surgeon; H. F. Copeland, assistant surgeon; W. H. Nash, quartermaster; B. S. Bryant, quartermaster sergeant; Lewis Rice and M. J. Luby, aides. The Posts were formed in the following order: Fletcher-Webster Post 13, Brackton, Alfred Munroe, commander; Post 8, Middleboro, Comrade Bump, commander; Post 31, Scituate, Comrade Severns, commander; Post 73, Abington, Comrade Wright, commander; Post 71, Rockland, Comrade Hopkins, commander; Post 70, Plymouth, Comrade Shannon, commander; Post 78, South Abington, Comrade Attwood, commander; Post 104, Hingham, Comrade Thomas, commander; Post 111, Penikese, Comrade Collamore, commander; Post 112, South Scituate, Comrade Thomas, commander; Post 124, East Bridgewater, Comrade Osborne, commander; Post 127, Hanson, Comrade Attwood, commander.

As soon as the President arrived the Ancients came to present, and when the carriage containing the President, Governor Long, and Mayor Green appeared the infantry moved forward and took him in escort, the artillery bringing up the rear. As they passed by the Grand Army they gave him the proper salute and he acknowledged the drooping of the colors by uncovering his head. The veterans then followed in the rear and the procession moved up to the field where the tents for the dinner were pitched.

The President was formally received at the Webster mansion by Mr. G. W. Allen in behalf of Mrs. Fletcher-Webster and the Webster Historical Society. At the tomb Mr. Allen delivered another address. Gov. Long and others also addressed the assembled citizens and comrades. President Arthur also addressed the company.

THIRTY-NINTH REGIMENT.

Sixteenth Annual Reunion at Natick—Gen. G. K. Warren Vindicated.

[From the Boston Herald.]

The sixteenth annual Reunion of the Thirty-ninth regiment occurred at Natick Wednesday. The regiment formed in line at South avenue at 10 o'clock, the Natick cornet band furnishing music, and under the command of Col. C. H. Porter marched through the principal streets to the common, where a tribute was paid to the memory of deceased comrades, the band playing a dirge, and thence to Clark's hall, where a business meeting was held and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: President, George A. Barker, of company D; Vice-President, C. H. Thomas, of company H; Secretary, C. H. Porter, of company D; Treasurer, William G. Shoen, of Executive Committee, C. H. Porter, of company D; H. Seavers, of company I, and J. P. Bissett, of company K; Company Secretaries, H. A. Seavers, of company H, O. E. Ricker, of company B, John Prouty, of company G, P. H. Gavin, of company D, John H. James, of company C, Edward King, of company F, E. E. Travis, of company I, and A. P. Bartlett, of company K. The following deaths have occurred during the year: Comrades A. W. Cole, Chandler Cole and Henry O.
